

Sinclair Broadcasting is ignoring its obligation to serve the public and is using the public airwaves to promote the partisan political agenda of its owners. They do not own the airwaves. If they are going to insist on using them in this way, the public needs to take them back. At the very least, the fairness doctrine needs to be reinstated. What we really need is for all candidates to have free and equal air time. That would take the power of money out of the campaigns to a large extent. What the candidates currently need the money for is to pay for air time. This profits only the broadcasting companies. We should take that center of profits and the temptation to do what Sinclair is now doing away from them completely!
